School of Expression.

The sixth annual commencement of the Richmond School of Expression, under the direction of Mrs. W. E. Thurston, will take place at the Academy of Music Thursday evening, May 23rd, beginning at 8:20 o'clock.

From the professional course class diplomas will be conferred upon Misses Beulah Anthony and Eula Bailey—Miss Anthony having studied with special reference to the teachers' course.

Miss Bailey, whose cut appears elsewhere, possesses a brilliant voice and is a magnetic personality. She will be heard in "His Last Triumph," a selection of unusual dramatic effect.

In the practical course class are Misses Ida Dillard, Myrtle Owen and Mr. J. L. Lichtenstein. The latter is distinguished for having reached the highest class record in the history of the school, and also by one of its members, little Miss Dillard, being the youngest person ever known to complete the Shakespeare course.

The Rev. Dr. A. Ashby Jones will deliver the diplomas.

Under graduates ready for the practical course next year are Misses Marie Anderson, Maggie Bryant, Gladys Neale, Jean Field, Paul Lichtenstein, Lucile King, Elizabeth King, Gertrude Miller, Daisy Wilson, Elizabeth Wilson.

A most attractive programme has been arranged, prominent features being two aesthetic drills and one military drill.

Boxes will be occupied by representative Richmond people.

Excursion to Williamsburg.

There will be an excursion to Williamsburg Saturday, May 25th, under the auspices of Mrs. William Elyson's Circle, No. 4, of the Second Baptist Church.

Williamsburg is the oldest incorporated town in Virginia. William and Mary College was founded as long ago as 1692 and first designed by Sir Christopher Wren. The seat of government was removed to Williamsburg in 1773, and the last of colonial Governors, Lord Dunmore, lived in the Governor's palace there.

The people of Williamsburg are most kind and hospitable to strangers who visit there, to whom they proffer many attentions.

A room near the station will be placed at the disposal of the party going down Saturday, where they can rest and leave their lunch baskets.

A number of well known ladies will chaperone parties of young people who may desire to go.
